

DEFENSE PLANS TO TEAR DOWN COLLEY TALE

Expect to Prove Frank Innocent by Discrediting Negro's Story of Phagan Crime.

Warned that the State is basing practically all of its expectations of sending Leo M. Frank to the gallows on the dramatic story told by Jim Conley, the defense this week is completing the collection of a strong line of evidence with which it is planned utterly to discredit the negro's statements and his testimony in court. Conley again has insisted on confronting Frank. He says he is certain if he can meet the factory superintendent face to face he can make him 'tell the whole story.' The negro has told the detectives he not only is willing, but is eager to repeat in the presence of Frank the story of the disposal of Phagan's body just as he has related it a dozen times since he first made the sensational acknowledgment that he had a part in the crime.

It is regarded as most unlikely that the two will be brought together. Luther Z. Rosser, attorney for Frank, has refused to make any definite statement of his attitude in the matter, but it is known he looks with suspicion on every word and every act of the negro. He has given the impression that he is not unwilling for his client to face the negro, but that he regards the court room as the proper place for the meeting and the actual trial of Frank at the proper time. For this reason, the dramatic moment when accused and accused confront each other in all probability will be saved for the time when the legal battle is in progress for Frank's life.

Attack Planned on Negro. At this time it is the intention of the defense to begin with the first statements by which Conley connected himself with the case after he had remained silent for two weeks following his arrest. Frank's lawyers will take the separate details of the negro's affidavits, one by one, and seek to show that in the light of probabilities they are utterly absurd and ridiculous. Particular emphasis will be placed on the fact that the negro has lied liberally many times in the past. He has told of his connection with the crime. The defense will take the position that it is most unreasonable to believe after he has made two affidavits admittedly perjured to save his case, and a third affidavit which it holds is absolutely true. In the firm belief that Conley's renewed demand to be brought face to face with Frank is a mere subterfuge by which the negro is seeking to shift the blame for the crime. Attorney Rosser is expected to give him a most relentless grilling when he is called to the witness stand by the State. The negro makes no secret of his expectation of breaking down the negro's tale. An open court confession would not surprise them, they say.

Believes Conley Won't Break. Solicitor Dimes and his associate in the prosecution, Frank A. Hooper, ridicule the possibility that the negro will make a confession on the witness stand. Mr. Hooper said Monday morning that he believed the negro would make an excellent witness, probably the most valuable one the State would call. He did not believe, however, that the negro would break down under the fire of questions from Attorney Rosser and Reuben Arnold, both of whom have a wide reputation for taking cross-examination to which they can subject a person in the witness chair.

Isn't Any Thought that Conley Will Retain. Solicitor Dimes said Monday morning that he believed the negro would make an excellent witness, probably the most valuable one the State would call. He did not believe, however, that the negro would break down under the fire of questions from Attorney Rosser and Reuben Arnold, both of whom have a wide reputation for taking cross-examination to which they can subject a person in the witness chair.

BOY OF BOY FOUND IN LAKE
Slaton Shakes Big Stick at Legislature

VEGETARIAN
TO FASTEN BUDGET

Governor Slaton has sent word down the line, and it is sure to be accepted as final, that the Legislature must bring out the general appropriations bill at least ten days before final adjournment, or face the prospect of an executive veto.

Governor Slaton is known to have some very positive and precise ideas of what the general appropriation bill should carry, and he is going to insist that the General Assembly to the mark in the matter of keeping that bill well within the State's income.

Heretofore the practice has been to bring the general appropriation bill at the very last moment, leaving the Executive to wrestle with it the best he knew how within the ten days allotted to him after adjournment, in which he may act upon all legislative matters left over.

This year, however, the Governor has determined that he shall have that bill ten good days before adjournment, in order that he may return it to the House and Senate, if necessary, with such recommendations and changes as he may think proper.

Blame to Be Shared.

Responsibility for exactly what has happened here will be distributed fairly and justly between the Executive and Legislative Departments, which, heretofore, it has not been Governor Slaton, who served sixteen years in the Legislature, knows the methods of both houses through and he knows how the General Assembly frequently has embarrassed the Executive Department in the matter of making impossible appropriations.

That he will stand for none of that, now that he is a Governor, already is an ax to grind.

Frank to the gallows on the dramatic story told by Jim Conley, the defense this week is completing the collection of a strong line of evidence with which it is planned utterly to discredit the negro's statements and his testimony in court.

Conley again has insisted on confronting Frank. He says he is certain if he can meet the factory superintendent face to face he can make him "tell the whole story." The negro has told the detectives he not only is willing, but is eager to repeat in the presence of Frank the story of the disposal of Mary Phagan's body just as he has related it a dozen times since he first made the sensational acknowledgment that he had a part in the crime.

It is regarded as most unlikely that the two will be brought together. Luther Z. Ross, attorney for Frank, has refused to make any definite statement of his attitude in the matter, but it is known he looks with suspicion on every word and every act of the negro. He has given the impression that he is not unwilling for his client to face the negro, but he has no desire to have the trial of Frank as the present time. For this reason, the dramatic moment when accused and accused confront each other in all probability will be saved for the time when the legal battle is in progress for Frank's life.

Attack Planned on Negro. At this time, it is the intention of the defense to begin with the first statement by which Conley connected himself with the case after he had remained silent for two weeks following his arrest. Frank's lawyers will take the separate details of the negro's affidavit, one by one, and seek to show that in the light of probabilities they are utterly absurd and ridiculous.

Particular emphasis will be placed on the fact that the negro has lied in a number of places in the story, as he has told of his connection with the crime. The defense will take the position that it is most unreasonable for the State after the negro has made two affidavits admitting facts, to base its case on a third affidavit which it holds to be untrue.

The firm belief that Conley's renewed demand to be brought face to face with Frank is a mere subterfuge by which the negro is seeking to shift the blame for the crime, Attorney Ross is expected to give him a merciless grilling when he is called to the witness stand by the State. The defense makes no secret of its expectation of breaking down the negro's tale. An open court confession would not, in their opinion, hurt them any.
